Fleur de Lis History

Our non-denominational Chapel is a Historic Site originally constructed in 1910 as the Saint Mark's Episcopal Church on Euclid & "F" Street.

When the congregation eventually left for a larger home, the entire building was transported to its current location in 1968 in three sections. A group of volunteers set about transforming it into a museum.

A fire broke out in 1982 ending the Chapel's museum days and paved the way for its use as a wedding facility. Now this quaint, wood-shingle building is set far back from the road and rests on one of Upland's tree-lined streets. The chapel bell used for grand exits is from the USS Mattaponi ship and is on loan from the Naval Historical Center in Washington D.C. The USS Mattaponi, a fleet tanker, was one of the fastest oilers which served the U. S. fighting forces at sea from World War II to 1972.

Funds raised are used to continue the restoration and beautification of the location.

Fleur de Lis has preserved it's historic character with elegant décor, the sounding of a bell tower, and the option to have your guests toss rose petals or bubbles at your grand exit.
