All Saints Chapel

▪ BUILT 1875, RESTORED 2008. ▪

Imagine driving through the heart of downtown Raleigh on the way to your wedding. You pass the Museum of Natural History, vibrant Fayetteville Street and the State Capitol at Union Square. You pause at the City of Oaks Acorn for photographs in lush Moore Square. The history, culture, and design of Raleigh's core provide an intimate and picturesque backdrop for your cherished wedding memories.

Built in 1875 just half a mile from its new location, All Saints Chapel has been an integral part of Raleigh's downtown charm for over a century. Its details have been perfectly restored for an intimate wedding and reception.

All Saints Chapel has an open floor plan and 18-foot ceilings. The interior space is highlighted by five clerestory windows, large stained glass windows above the altar and stunning interior woodwork.

All Saints Chapel can accommodate receptions; however, it is also within walking distance to several excellent reception locations. With so many options, All Saints Chapel is the perfect place for your special day.
