

Welcome.

First off, thank you for considering having me at your wedding. It is an honor to be in this position alone. I would love to meet you and your significant other when you have a chance to get to know the both of you better. I really value the relationships I have made over the years with past clients. In fact, I consider them to be more important than any other aspect of this industry. Again. Thank you.

Style.

Elegant, Timeless, Documentation. What does that mean?

Elegant

Within the documentation of your day, I mix in some posed pictures and fine art pictures. Different from a documentary style of photography, I will potentially adjust certain things in your pictures to pop out more. I do this at my discretion for photos that could benefit from slight manipulations.

Timeless

I focus on moments. Moments will outlast the styles and trends that will fade away. In my edits, I focus on a natural color. I believe a solid color or black and white photo will always stand the test of time.

Documentation

I photograph moments as they happen. This is first and foremost the primary way I shoot. This is done by giving as little direction as possible and letting your day unfold as it is. I believe that you will be more attached to photos that are natural and true to the moment. I believe that focusing too heavily on Pinterest ideas can often hinder the uniqueness your day has to offer. Lets focus on capturing raw moments from your day that don't need to be scripted. Authentic. Original. Each and every photo in this pricing guide has a story behind it to why I know it is important to the couple. They are moments frozen in time to remind you when your dad gave a heart-felt speech about your partner. Or when you stopped at a smoothy bar to get drinks because you were so famished and Lisa, an elderly woman that has been working there for years said the kindest words to you. These are storytellers.

Me.

This is me. My name is Benjamin. Benjamin Strong.

I love food. There. I said it. I love finding hole in the wall places with amazing food.

I live in La Crosse, Wisconsin to take care of my grandparents while I still can. Right now that gives me purpose.

You could say I was always a goofball.

I love riding my cycle.

I love traveling. I have been all over the world shooting weddings, experiencing so many different cultures. It has been so eye opening.

I believe in documenting lifestyles and people. Each individual has so many different experiences that has shaped who they are as a person. It excites me to go into a wedding day without knowledge of the family and see how each family operates, relates and connects.

Prints.

In the past, before social media there was only one way to actually see the photos taken...prints. People would print their photos, place them in albums and the albums would be passed down from generation to generation. Technology has allowed us to print amazing wedding albums without requiring reflective sleeves to put them in. I truly believe that prints are not dead. There is something that bonds you to a photo you physically have. I believe this so much that I personally added a complimentary 10 spread album to every package as a gift to you.

These quality linen and leather heirloom albums can be customized further than what I offer. There are options for 4, 8, 10, and 12 inch albums with linen or leather options as well as thin or thick pages.

Additional options include a Cameo Window, Engraving, Debossing, Presentation Box, or Craftsman Wood Boxes.
