Here's the Scoop:

I was in the inner-city a while back and there was an older street musician playing his tarnished sax on a stool. As I placed a buck in his bucket I immediately noticed a brownish cloth sticking out from the breast pocket of his khaki sport coat. The sport coat looked like it was a few years away from its last dry cleaning, but man, did it look cool on him with that brown impromptu pocket square popping out! For all I know that square had a dual purpose of wiping the sweat from his brow as he wailed away on his favorite Charlie Parker riffs. All I know is that I never forgot that style. I couldn't even tell you today where I was or what he was playing and I'm not sure if that old jacket was truly khaki, but I remember how he stood out with that brown square popping out.

A few months later I was traveling through another part of the city and was early for a meeting and along the street was a fabric store. On a whim, I stopped in to see if I could get a cloth like that sax player had. But, I stopped my search when I came upon the burlaps. Most people see them for their ruggedness, I saw their sophistication begging to be noticed. Then I remembered the sax player! And MisterBurlap™ was born.

Ever since that day I have a different burlap pocket square on my suit and I always get compliments. I can wear my most dated, drab suit and that square makes it have a whole new life.

It's Hip to be Squared!
