

Ceci New York's custom design service is a very special, creative collaborative process that is designed all around you and your specific needs. So unlike other stationery companies, you are not required to sit down and sift through hundreds of books to pick your exact font/design/colors before ordering. The beauty of working with us is that our Founder and Creative Director, Ceci Johnson and her design team will come up with a unique design concept just for you from their imagination. While other companies might say "What do you want?" We say "Here's what we want to create for you!" Our team will expertly guide you every step of the way and present all the design ideas to you during the creative process. You never have to worry, What if I'm not going to like it, we guarantee you will! Together, we will work to refine and make your invitation perfect. At the end of your experience, you will receive a statement invitation suite unlike any other. To give you an idea, our starting pricing for a 4-piece custom invitation suite (which includes invitation, mailer envelope, reply card, and reply envelope) printed with 1 color letterpress begins at:
