Why I Include an Engagement Session & Wedding Album in Every Collection

My goal as a wedding photographer is to document your life organically and creatively and to make you feel valued, loved, and cared for as an individual couple during your entire experience with me. I work diligently with each couple throughout the whole creative process to ensure an effortless journey that results in artistic and timeless imagery that will last for generations to come. To help achieve this goal, it is essential that I include an engagement session and a custom, hand made wedding album with every package.

ENGAGEMENT SESSION

I include an engagement session with all of my packages because I strongly believe it helps me take better pictures on your wedding day. During the engagement session, we get to spend one on one time getting to know each other and build a connection with each other. I can learn more about you, how you and your fiance interact, and we get a chance to get more comfortable with each other, which is key in getting natural looking pictures. You and your fiance will learn my style of shooting and I can teach you some of my posing tips so you don't have to spend as much time learning on your wedding day. The engagement session is a great way for you (and your fiance – men aren't known to be too excited about portrait sessions!) to get comfortable being in front of the camera.

WEDDING ALBUM

I choose to include a custom hand made photo album with every wedding package I offer. I believe in delivering show-stopping heirlooms that evoke the irreplaceable emotions, memories, and beauty of your wedding day. I believe your experience with me is not complete until you have something tangible to feel, hold, and look through together with your new spouse. There is something drastically different about being able to pull out your wedding album with your beautifully displayed pictures to show your family, best friends, or to admire on a normal day together with your growing family many years down the road.
