Stories

There is a force in this world that doesn't want us to live good stories, it doesn't want us to face our fears and bring something beautiful into this world. Stories have always captivated me. When I was younger they were fiction stories, but as I grew older I loved reading about people who created their stories. I guess you could say that this is why I love weddings. It is the start of two people making their story happen... Together. And I get to document that for you.

I picked up a camera because I wanted to record the world around me and share that world with people. I wanted to bring something beautiful to the world.

Stories are what give us hope, provide us insight and move us forward. They make up our day and we yearn to live our lives in a way that creates a great story.

Style

My style and approach can best be described as narrative. I like to shoot the day as it unfolds. No shot list, just being present.

My goal is to document your wedding in the way the day plays out, while giving you photos that will last you for years to come. We will do some fun poses, we might get adventurous, but in the end we will have made images you will love.

I know that weddings can be stressful and for me, a big part of my job is to alleviate as much of that stress as possible. We will laugh, some of us might cry, (I get a little misty eyed at times), but in the end we will have a great time and together we will make great photos!
