Wedding day coverage should begin about 1.5 to 2 hours before the ceremony, or, if you are doing a first look / reveal and formals before the ceremony, allow about an hour for prep and about 1.5 to 2.5 hours for formal photos. Consider travel time if the ceremony and reception are not in the same spot, and large families or bridal parties take more time than smaller ones. Usually, I don't need to be there for the last hour of the reception unless a big send-off is planned, and overtime is available until the last minute. Generally speaking, weddings at an estate/golf club require about 7-8 hours of coverage, and city weddings with different ceremony and reception venues often require 9-11 hours.

Need extra time? Overtime is $200/hour ($300/hour for two photographers) and can be added at contract signing or on the day of the event.

An assistant is included in all collections. An assistant helps with lighting, carrying equipment, and many other things, but does not shoot. A second photographer is there to cover the day and provide a second point of view. A second photographer can start with the groom while I photograph the bride, but an assistant remains with the main photographer all day. Basically, two photographers can be in two places at one time.
