

Welcome and thank you for considering me to document such an important day in your life! Please read the paragraphs below to learn more about what you can expect if you choose me as your photographer.

On your wedding day, I want to combine your experience with the comfort you'd find in a friend and the level of professionalism you'd expect from someone you've invested money in. I know from years of experience, and from planning my own, just how much time and emotion is put into planning a wedding. Throughout your planning process, you and your partner can expect prompt and consistent responses to your inquiries from me, and an effort to build a relationship between us, not only to make you more comfortable as the subjects of my work, but in an effort to learn the significance of moments and relationships between you and your partner, your family, and your guests in order to better anticipate and capture these moments for you. This helps me capture who you are, and give you honest, piercing photos! On the day of your ceremony, you can expect me to exude a calm and soothing presence. I will gently and easily prompt you to move to find the most flattering angle, the best light, and the most genuine moment. I am committed to creating fine art from your day, drawing on all elements – the beauty of the venue and surrounding landscape, the lighting, your love – to art direct the scene. Without making you feel like your day is dictated by me, I will transition my style through the course of the day at the appropriate times to blend a mixture of fine art and photojournalistic styles. All this means is that I will aim to create work that is visually and aesthetically pleasing, and at times, will switch to a more observational, less directional role, in order to capture the complete picture of the story of your love, in the least obtrusive way possible. Above all, I will do my best to give you the experience I would want – to bring you a light energy, and to provide you with timeless heirlooms to appreciate for years to come!
