

Deals to Be Found with Designer Estate Jewelry

There are a number of deals that you can find with designer estate jewelry. Whether you look locally or online, it can be one of the best opportunities to get the designer jewelry that you desire, at a cost that you can afford. The deals will vary throughout the year, and when you search for estate jewelry online, you have the ability to make a few comparisons. You will always want to remember the “buyer beware” tip, and there are some ways to accomplish this more effectively.

When you are searching estate jewelry, it is important to look at the designer. If you have never heard of the designer, it is likely going to be generic and therefore you are not getting the best possible deal. You will want to search for all of the top brands, such as Cartier, Tiffany, Bvlgari, and others. This will ensure that you are getting the best deals.

There is always the possibility of finding a designer within estate jewelry, and when you find them, they are likely going to be more affordable than if you were to go into one of the designer boutiques and buy a piece new.

Not all estate jewelry sales know what they have. You may go into one held locally and the items are being sold by a member of the family. You could spot a Cartier ring or a Roberto Coin necklace without the person selling knowing what they truly have. This works to your advantage because you can make an offer and have it accepted.

This happens all the time with designer estate jewelry. People don't bother to have the jewelry appraised prior to it going on sale and therefore they are letting very expensive jewelry go for less. Many times, family makes the assumption that the jewelry is costume and not the real thing. This is bad for them but good for you.

Whatever you are in search of deals, you also want to make sure that you are buying the real thing. Whether you buy at a local estate sale or you are buying online, you want to take a look at authenticity. If the name of the designer is engraved inside of the jewelry, then you can rely on it being the real thing. Otherwise, you will want to be on the lookout for a certificate of authenticity.

Sometimes, you will know that you are buying the real thing based upon where or who you are buying from. Other times, you will not be so sure – and this is when research is of the utmost importance. Contact the seller and ask a few questions.

It's also a good idea to do some comparisons between what the various estates have to offer. If you want Roberto Coin jewelry for example, you may find several pieces between the different estate sales. Explore the prices and varieties so you know where you want to buy and who is offering the best deal. This is particularly important if you don't have a specific piece you are after.